HEAD OF HOUSE

Job Description

HELLO!

Are you looking to make an impact and stretch your skills this summer? If so, read on, because the Oxford Scholastica Academy is not just any old summer school.

We're an education company on a mission: to give students the edge to help them succeed, find their purpose and make a difference in the world.

We're striving for a world in which young people go on to do things which maximise their potential, are socially impactful and make them happy.

We help to do this by running summer programmes for bright 12-18 year olds from around the world, giving them greater awareness of the range of academic and career possibilities that exist, and greater certainty over the future direction they wish to pursue. We run summer courses in Oxford and online, as well as online internships and conferences throughout the year.

At the summer school, we aim to transform our students' ambitions and their thinking in just two weeks. For our students Oxford Scholastica Academy is not just a summer school; it's the most memorable summer of their lives.

(It's also one of the most impactful summers for our staff. Team members regularly return to OSA each summer, and many continue with us - we currently have representatives from summers 2015, 2016, 2022 and 2023 on the year-round team).

If this sounds like something you are passionate about too, we'd welcome an application from you. Read on further for more information, or please feel free to contact us if you have any questions.

Best wishes,

Jamie Dear, Sophie Dear and Lavinia Abell
Co-Directors

Our Worldview

What a time to be alive.

Never before have there been so many possibilities in a young person's life. Technological, medical, financial, social and political advances have transformed what a student can do and achieve.

However, teenagers experience an education system built for a previous century, and a society in which success is defined in narrow and short-term ways.

They live on a planet which is being destroyed rather than stewarded and inhabit a culture which increasingly values division over community.

Whilst technology has brought great benefits, they experience the dark side of social media communication and "comparison culture", which has contributed to a mental health epidemic amongst young people.

Many students feel current pressure to achieve, to be perfect, to get into competitive universities, but there is also future pressure – our students experience greater uncertainty about their future than their parents' generation.

Oxford Scholastica gives students the tools, knowledge and confidence to thrive in this ever-changing, uncertain environment.

We exist to help young people make the most of the positive changes in the world, rather than feeling constrained by them.

We believe:

Active thinking is more valuable than passive thinking

We believe we should all have a bias towards agency of thought and action. This mindset opens up the potential for great possibilities and greater fulfilment, unencumbered by the expectations of others.

Collaboration for the good of the community is more valuable than independent progress

We believe a greater purpose exists than purely fulfilling our own needs. We believe agency should be channelled in a positive way for the benefit of others and we believe that, by coming together as a community, more things become possible.

Long-term thinking is more valuable than short-term thinking

We believe that when you think and plan for the long-term, you achieve more for yourself and for others.

We believe this belief system can be universally attainable for students regardless of background, nationality, gender, race, income etc.

Oxford Scholastica inspires and empowers young people to think for themselves and equips them with the skills to make positive change, enabling them to make informed choices about their future, as well as the futures of other people and the world.

By helping them to open their minds, find community, be inspired, and learn about what really interests them academically and matters to them personally, our programmes leave students more confident and more likely to achieve their goals. We alleviate the stress that external pressure and uncertainty cause.

In other words, we exist to change young people's futures and, in doing so, to change the world in a positive way.

HEAD OF HOUSE JOB DESCRIPTION

As Head of House, you'll be the main go-to person for students in your house. Through managing your team of Activities Coordinators, you'll create a fun, safe and caring atmosphere for your students, ensuring they are having the summer of their lives at OSA.

THE ROLE

Oxford Scholastica students are divided into different houses, each with one Head of House and a number of Activities Coordinators.

Our Heads of House play a key role in ensuring that the students on the Oxford Scholastica Academy enjoy themselves and are well looked after. They are the focal point for each of our Houses, and are residential for the duration of the summer school (alongside another staff member).

They will meet and greet students and parents on the first day of the summer school, helping them to settle into the accommodation and to make friends as early on as possible. Throughout the summer school, they will be the main point of contact for our students, and lead daily briefings to the group.

They will line manage the three to six Activities Coordinators attached to their House, and lead the team to successfully deliver the timetable and create a fun and safe atmosphere for the students. This will involve overseeing the Activities Coordinators as they assist with the general day-to-day running of the school (helping with breakfast, escorting students to class, running afternoon and evening activities). It will also involve taking an active part in these tasks themselves.

Heads of House will oversee pastoral care for the students in their House, with the support of our Matron, and basic discipline, upholding the organisation's Discipline Policy where required. Heads of House will also be a first point of contact for any staff concerns, questions or issues and will work with the Head of Summer School to resolve these.

Heads of House also have an important role to play in helping to inspire the students to think about their futures. Students will see their Head of House as a role model, and Heads of House should be keen to share their university and professional experiences for students to tap.

Heads of House should be lively and outgoing, interested in people and keen to support young people to enjoy themselves during their time in Oxford. Experience of working with children is particularly helpful in this role. They should also have excellent administrative skills, and feel confident both in leading their own sub-team and working as part of the larger Oxford Scholastica team.

Each of our Houses will have a team of three to six Activities Coordinators led by a Head of House. They will be managed by Izzy, our Head of Summer School, and Connie, our Head of Campus. They will be part of a wider team including Steph, our Head of Sales & Student Experience, and our Operations team, as well as our Co-Directors Jamie and Lavinia.

If you enjoy your time at Oxford Scholastica, there will be future opportunities to get involved after the summer school ends. Our Heads of House often return the following summer in a more senior role, or go on to join the year-round team.

Some of the summer team at the Oxford Scholastica Ball on the River Thames

Oxford Scholastica is an experience like no other. In a sense, I was able to discover parts of myself with the help of my peers, tutors, and staff. Not only this, but getting to explore Oxford with friends, and discover the hidden gems that can be found was one of the best experiences of my life. I will never forget the experience I had. I still wear my wristband all the time, and I will never take it off.
